WIFE MURDER AND ITS PUNISHMENT.

(Pall Mall Garotto, Aug. 12th) At the Guildford Assizes on Friday, one of hose cases came under the consideration of the udge and jury which never feil to excite the leepest commiseration and bring forth the warmest sympathies of which Englishmen are of "the working classes," was indicted for felonionaly killing his wife at Camberwell. A more unjust asperison was never cast upon a descrying individual. The only evidence against Mr. Mahoney was that he was seen drugging his wife by the hair of her head and beating and knoes (a witness said), bleeding from the mouth and eyes, and frightfully swelled and and bruised, with two wounds on the left templer which were both bleeding. She was nomewhat officiously helped by a neighbour, seized her by the hair of her head and shook her violently. She lay there three days very ill. her left eve especially in a shooking state. After lingering some little time she died of lock-jaw, and the poor fellow in the dock had actually been called away from his occupation on account of this trifling affair. Mr. Mahoney's extreme candour of itself was aufficient to atone fully for any little irritability of temper he had displayed. Although his wife, evidently an artful woman, attempted to screen him, Mahoney, in all the proud consciousness of having acted only under Your slave find that the Governor General year or two that high officials in China re- England can throw its influence at the right sense of duty, scorned concessment, and cheek" when he said "she screamed"-although she must have known that men detest noise. Mr. Mahoney actually had killed his wife, but, of course, a nominal punishment met all the requirements of the case; and so the udge, niter feelingly observing that the prisoner "bad not intended to kill her," that her death was in a sense the accidental result of the violence inflicted," that as, however, such violence "was considerable and unprovoked, a sentence of some severity must he passed," let the poor fellow off with eight months' bard labour. Mr. Maboney will we hope, not think the law has been too severe upon bim. We must take some notice of these wife smashings. A pleasant youth of thirteen summers shot a half-breed woman the other day in Borryessa Valley, and it is said there was no provocation for the act. It does not seem probable, how ever, that one so young would have committed a movely wanton murder. He may have been tired of seeing ber about. The London Stereoscopic Company have brought out a striking and conveniently sized little bust of Charles Dickens in parism. The resemblance is exceedingly good, and the expression, said to have been caught by the modeller during some of Mr. Dickens's public rendings, very thoughtful and intense. A DOUBLE RECEDING .- We have received information which will go far to justify, in one point, at least, the doubts of those who put small credit in Mr. Cardwell's paper efficiency. It is confidently asserted that Mr. Cardwell has overstated the number of breech-loading rifles in store by 100,000, in consequence of having reckoned the Tower twice over. We understand that the right hon, gontleman is using every endearour to find out the origin of this gra-
